Job Application for Linux C developer

Dear HR, thanks for taking the time to read the following lines.

About Me

Hi, my name is Pablo Weremczuk. I came from the game development industry. I consider myself successful in this field since I got two awards creating independent games. Also, I released another project on Steam (the digital distribution platform).

I worked for several companies like Unilever, Coca-Cola, The Walt Disney Company, and Barclays Investment Bank. I prefer big companies since I don't feel comfortable in the startup-like environments.

I loved working for the entertainment industry for almost a decade, but since I want to create a positive impact on the world, it becomes clear that I'm not going to achieve that goal making games or supporting consumer products.

Why Siemens?

I checked the projects available at Siemens and working with trains and automating factories sounds like an amazing challenge and I can imagine myself contributing to these areas in a meaningful way.

Why Me?

I love working on interactive projects and pushing the boundaries of technology. I'm convinced that the hardware is the platform, not the software.

Among my open source projects, I created plugins for game engines and contributed to Data-Oriented Design frameworks using mostly C99 and Linux.

Sincerely,

Pablo R. Weremczuk
